

Company Volunteers Brighten the Lives of Children

Employees of Rockwell Automation spent a good part of a September Sunday taping and painting handrails and doors at the Child Development Center of St. Joseph. One mom even brought her 10 yr. old son along to work toward his Scouting Patch. He not only learned the fine art of painting but also enjoyed the camaraderie that ensued.

Graphic artists from the Weyco Group spent two days at the Center painting a specially designed mural in M10.

Mindful of giving back to the community, both companies encouraged their employees to volunteer during the United Way Days of Caring.

We are very grateful to these companies and the volunteers. We look forward to more projects with them in the future.
